

CV FILM EDITOR ROBIN DE JONG, NCE 2018

Robin de Jong was born in Naarden, The Netherlands in 1987. Being fascinated by horror and comic book movies at an early age, he started pursuing a career in film after having a cathartic experience while seeing The Fellowship of the Ring. After making his first feature length film with the help of his friends at the age of 15, he did a short course in filmmaking and found a fascination for editing and storytelling. From there he decided not to enter a formal study in filmmaking, but instead chose to immediately enter the workforce. Working in technical positions at post production facilities in Amsterdam he quickly became an assistant editor on feature films and helped develop new post production workflows in the upcoming wave of digital cameras. From this position he worked himself up becoming a film editor, cutting his first feature film "Claustrofobia" in 2011. By balancing the technical, creative and social aspects of the craft many of the films he cut in his career have gone to become box office hits and won many awards. He is the youngest person of the Netherlands Association of Cinema Editors (NCE) to become an active member, bearing its title.
